HIGH LINE OPEN STUDIOS (Saturday)
While Piers 92 and 94 fill up with visitors to the Armory Show, more than 50 artists a little farther south, in West Chelsea, will welcome the public into their studios for the spring 2015 edition of High Line Open Studios.

The self-guided tour, at locations along the High Line and around Chelsea, is an uncommon opportunity to get a glimpse into artists' work spaces, such as the ones at top (by Maria Fragoudaki) and below (by Adrienne Leban). Artists will discuss their work and their methods, though some guests may just want to take a look around and see if anything catches their eye. After all, the event is also a chance to purchase works direct from the artists' studio inventories before they end up on gallery walls.

A map is at highlineopenstudios.org. From noon to 6 p.m.; 212-242-1909; free. (Joshua Barone)
